John D. Fanburg, Chair

In today's complex and ever-changing healthcare environment, providers and institutional healthcare businesses need trusted and experienced advisors to help them negotiate the myriad legal and business issues that arise in the course of practicing medicine and operating in the healthcare sector.

Brach Eichler pioneered the discipline of health law in New Jersey and has developed - and continues to cultivate - its reputation as a leader in health law representation.

Our deep bench of health law attorneys - 23 strong - represents individuals and businesses from every corner of the healthcare industry, encompassing both for-profit and non-profit entities. Our clients range from individual practitioners to large physician and dental groups, from hospitals and hospital systems to medical staff organizations, from physician specialty societies to healthcare trade associations, from long-term care facilities to home health and hospice agencies, and from substance use disorder treatment facilities to ambulatory surgery centers and other outpatient facilities. Our attorneys have significant experience with matters and regulations affecting all healthcare providers and businesses.

Knowledgeable across a very extensive spectrum of issues, our attorneys deftly handle an array of healthcare business, transactional, licensure, compliance, white collar criminal, and litigation matters.

We are actively involved in all developments affecting healthcare industry participants, and have strong relationships with public officials and medical societies at both the state and national level. As such, we are able to effectively advocate on behalf of individual practitioners and healthcare facilities.

And as we help our clients adapt and respond to new economic and regulatory challenges, we tap and smoothly integrate other members of the Brach Eichler team in the areas of corporate tax, labor and employment, financial services, litigation, and real estate, among others.

The leading attorney ranking company, Chambers USA, cites clients who applaud Brach Eichler's health law practice, "They provide an outstanding quality of service at an excellent price. They understand their clients, and if there is a job that needs doing they can be counted on to do it right."
