Tracy Miller has more than 35 years of experience in health care law and regulation. Her experience as EVP & General Counsel of a large health system, law firm practice and leader in health policy in New York State inform the advice and insight that she brings to her clients, on matters ranging from governance to complex transactions and contracts, affiliations, health care regulation, cybersecurity and data privacy. Tracy has advised boards and executives, assisting clients to realize their governance, business and operational goals, from big picture strategic initiatives to concrete legal steps to achieve implementation.

Tracy has extensive experience representing health systems, hospitals, physician practices, home care agencies, hospice programs, long-term care facilities, independent practice associations, and entities organized to participate in value-based payment initiatives. She has counseled organizations comprised of health systems, health care providers and community-based organizations created to coordinate care and social services, tackling the governance, contractual and data sharing issues that undergird the collaboration. She has broad experience in health care strategy and regulation, advising clients about specific matters and policies to address physician contracts and alignment, compliance, conflicts of interest, cybersecurity incident response, human subjects research and AI, among other areas. Drawing on her role as the former Executive Director of the New York State Governor's Task Force on ethics in medicine, Tracy has counseled clients about individual cases, policies and ethics committees. She has a deep understanding of health policy and government relations.

Tracy is the former Chair and member of the Executive Committee of the 1,100-member Health Law Section of the New York State Bar Association and former Vice Chair of the AHLA Conflict of Interest and Transparency Group.
